TRAINING OF ENGLISH AND AMERICAN GIRLS

Muriel Hine, English Author, Compares Methods and Standards to Qur Advantage.

Espionage and Ignorance Mar Young English Girl's Character -Injustice of Divorce Laws.

In New Novel, "Earth," Points These Evils-Benefits of American Girls' Freedom.

By MURIEL HINE.

OWEVER glorious it may be for a nation to possess a mighty past, beneath the pride of years there lurks a subtle peril in the inheri-For it is more difficult for an old and governing race to move forward "with the times" than for one whose history is mainly with the future. Hampered by heavy precedence, lulled a sense of security, the former is inclined to rest on her laurels satisfied and smile a little incredulously perhaps at the forward march of younger nations striving to reach the Utopia of ultra modern ideals. Her laws and regulations have stood the test of time, her habits are rooted deep, like an old and mighty oak, secure in the strength its vast proportions, but forgetful of the changes in the soil beneath

In no way, I think, is this more easily demonstrated than in the relative attitudes toward their womankind of England and America. It is true that of late years a great outery has been raised in England on the (so-called) "rights of woman." Hysterical and neglected atoms of stormy femininity have banded together to assert these "rights." producing scorn, amusement and even sympathy by their shrill cries and occasional illegal proceedings.

But whether the securing of a vote would lead to an amelioration of their social condition is extremely doubtful. It could strike at the very heart of British prejudice and involve the destruction of one of our primary "traditions," the marital supremacy of the The saddest note, to me, of all this frenzied protest lies in the fact that in a younger and from the British point of view less matured and civilized race these "rights" were rarely have willingly accepted the sacrifice An American weman of to-day has no need to fight for liberty, tolerance and respect; they are, without controversy, accorded her from the moment of her cluded without the wherewithal to en-And this is not a question of individual merit nor of sex equality. It is an accepted fact that is the backbone of soldier son, a shining light in an exthe American people, a principle of its hard headed, shrewd, swift moving race. From her earliest days the young Ameran girl moves in a spirit of security that is unquestioned and maintained by her men folk to the outer limit (if need be) of the "unwritten law." that typical defence of honor unknown even in countries where the cult of the Virgin is the point of a passionate religion. Assured of unfailing respect, she is free to mingle with the opposite sex on the level of "good fellowship" and is allowed perpetual opportunity for this unrestricted intercourse, gaining while still in "pinafore days" a knowledge of mankind which must prove of inestimable value when it comes to the great decision of her life, the choice of a suitable and "sympathetic" partner in

But here in England we cling to that relic of feudal days the duenna. We do not openly trust our girls. We have them watched, mistrusting the ways and weaknesses of the men we permit them to meet. But this spirit of espionage, this scar of our boasted "civilization, defeats its own ends by setting a meretricious value on freedom from restraint.

And this freedom, to the Eng ousness as a beginning, not an end; Throughout her school days it is either surrounding "the Young Heir deliberately ignored or dangled before her eyes as the result of personal "conone is brought to this conclusion: In quest," enhanced by the pleasing pageant of wedding procession, trousseaux and congratulation and sanctioned by the To give the latter additional power to give the latter additional power. pily" is in the nature of a risk.

hand her child into the keeping of a tie can be dissolved. man often hardly more than a surface acquaintance, after a few months woman to plead "cruelty" as well as "in nature's laws, except perhaps with a has ceased to love her; whereas it needs vague idea of evading maternity. andicap on social amusement and ama deliberate evasion of the serious responsibilities of the marriage state. She is kept ignorant and labelled innocent. kiss, all this is sufficient ground for For it naturally follows, being an easy prey to an unscrupulous man, that she a condition of affairs as exists in civi-From that moment she is equally free is condemned to continue at the mercy to arrange her own conduct; to be sur- of a man who is permitted, by law, to rounded with men, to be flattered, sur-reptitiously wood and, provided she women of the demi-monde, and to lead

Is it to be wondered at that many a warm hearted girl, tied to a man she that a doctor can certify. But this is has chosen for a husband in all ignonot the full cup of injustice; she has should slide imperceptibly, as the first fight. For be she the victim in the case, glamour fades, into the lax morality of as innocent of offence as Caesar's wife, "up to date" society? I have endeavored she is yet irrevocably stained by faithfully to portray this risk in my effort to novel "Half in Earnest"—too faithfully spect in freedom from such a man. perhaps, as it brought down the censure of the "Libraries Association" in this country. The English girl ran the chance of having her eyes opened to the perils of ignorance and Mrs. Grundy was up in arms!

Now it seems to me that America provides for the real innocence of her laughters without imposing this same blind ignorance. Accustomed freely to the society of men from her earliest Auys, but safeguarded by their code of respect to women," the American girl on face the marriage question with an Her "freedom" is to be hought at the hands of man. She is her own mistress already, un-hampered by the "insult" of the duenna. For I insist that in these enlightened days the necessity for chaperonage merits as strong a word. That a girl cannot move freely in her own class of society without the protection of an older woman reflects but little credit on the south of a nation. Moreover, she is not subservient to her brother as in England, where she is taught during her chilmood days to realize his paramount importance in the house, undoubtedly another relic of those barbarous times when an "independent" female was bundled hurriedly into the nearest convent by her male relations, there to be

A Better Book Than Queed By the Same Author-Just Out

V.V.'s Eyes By H. S. Harrison

"In our judgment it is one of the strongest and at the same time most delicately wrought American novels of recent years."-The Outlook.

BOSTON

'A story no less distinctively original than 'Queed' . . . In 'V. V.'s Eyes' as in 'Queed' may be found a group of people striking in their lifelikeness. and striking in their closeness to human nature's own self.

NEW YORK

"Henry Sydnor Harrison has more than made good the promise of 'Queed'; he has written a big book, a book that will be read and discussed." - Sun. "One of the best American novels of

CHICAGO

'V. V.'s Eyes' is an almost perfect example of idealistic realism. It has the soft heart, the clear vision and the boundless faith in humanity that are typical of our American outlook on life."

"Discloses the same ready wit, pleasant invention and dramatic imagery that were so strikingly apparent in this author's ini-tial novel."—North American.

"Mr. Harrison is undeniably one of the great literary artists of this coun-try."—Inquirer. RICHMOND

"Broader, bigger and higher as study, story and achievement than was his first published novel . . . A novel of most unusual interest-a counterpart of 'Queed' in charm, wit and quaint and delicate expression."

recent years.
-Herald. V.V.'s Eyes, according to the Springfield Republican, is "A delicate and artistic study of striking power and literary quality which may well remain the highwater mark in American fiction for the year . . . Mr. Harrison definitely takes his place as the one among our younger American novelists of whom the most enduring work may be hoped for." Pictures by R. M. Crosby. At all bookstores. $1.35 net.

-Record-Herald.

Send for FREE Bulletin of Summer Reading.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY

4 Park Street, Boston

16 E. 40th Street, New York

where without personal effort property and the means of support devolve on the sons from generation to generation they are embryo landlords and petty squires from their cradle days. Theirs is the inherited right to a university education, to the main outlay of the house the residue, and the girls are brought up in full recognition of the fact, in an almost servile state of obedience to their brothers.

necessary to put the son into an expentent to receive the most elementary education, to remain shabby and seter society, while every penny scraped together is heedlessly accepted by the doubtedly the national theory that a man should prove himself by work is productive of a healthy young community. In England we are all for "pride of possession," for the sanctity of "traditions," which in many cases are hopelessly threadbare and unsuitable to the times. The "innocence of our maidens," the "inviolability of the marriage law," the "inherited rights of the heir" still exact their daily sum of victims as in feudal days. But with this difference: that in the past traditions were upheld, not in luxurious sloth, but by deeds of knighthood, gallant swordsmanship, by the sacrifice of man's best energies. To the younger race, our cousins across the sea, we seem to have passed on the sturdy propaganda of labor and chivalry, of hard living and clean thinking the "pride of achievement," that virile self wears spatts and carries his handker-chief in his cuff. It is rumored that while abroad this summer he will purchase a

Stanley Washburn Author of Nogi"

Author of The Uphill Climb

travagant army "set." To these girls marriage is not only a gate leading to a girl, wider and freer life but a necessity, a is bought by marriage alone. Marriage is therefore the mecca of her hopes, the aim and object of her youthful intrigues, himself. Here the "marriage of convenience" is a foregone conclusion. It a gateway to a fuller wemanhood, tradition, the centuries deep glamour

To "marry well" we have arranged our laws of divorce. It to insure the latter; to "marry hap- is only by tearing aside the inner veil The graver issues are rigidly withheld. Her maiden innocence must be preserved at all costs. It is a part of the modern bargain that a mother can the modern bargain that a mother can poverty and neglect, that the marriage

"engagement," knowing nothing of fidelity" to be freed from a husband who but the merest suspicion of the latter Her whole education has been the weak testimony of a few hastily offence for the man to win his case; worded letters, the gossip of inquisitive servants, the damning evidence of a Hence the necessity for the duenna. the husband to rid himself of further responsibilities, as barbarously one sided preserve an outward discretion, to "en- his wife the life of a dog provided he has riage social grievances as well as legal to regain her wounded self-re-I doubt if any woman who has passed through English divorce courts ever en-

ALGERNON SAYS.

ALGERNON, the young millionaire hero of Charles Sherman's "snappy romance," talks divertingly: Algernon says: Study is a detriment to the memory. The more I study the more I have to forget. And the more one forgets the harder it is for one to remember, the weaker the memory grove. Algernon says: The chief end of a man in New York is dissipation; in Boston, conversation.

Algernon says: My mind is like a lottery ticket, a perfect blank when one needs it most.

Algernon says: That is a conundrum like a telegram announcing the arrival of your mother-in-law; there is no answer. Algernon says: There are only two things women ever consider as confessions, one is their correct age and the other is the size of their shoes. Algernon says: Work is a sign of mediocrity. The very high and the very low do not work. Why be mediocre?

Hate Tordan JAR Wylse
Author of The Creeping Tides. Author of The Daughterd Brahma

Will Levington Comfort Authorof The Boat of Living Med

from inherited laws of possession. Outwardly received in her own circle, although debarred attendance at court. she is conscious of a subtle disgrace; she still bears a portion of her husband's

I doubt whether this state of things Harold Fotheringay, author of "Belinda could exist in a more modern land. In dependent on both parties instead of by the soldier. Antony Rill.

and practical manner in which as a rule the American girl regards the question of marriage and I will confess a little moved to envy by the freedom with which she moves among men and the unfailing respect accorded to her. Unof a well known British baronet. This is,

A LITERARY EDITOR'S

and adventurous princess of the Russian royal family, who is famous throughout Europe for her purple hair and her collection of emeralds. American readers of this thrilling book—we refer to "Oozing Hearts" by Throbba Sniffleoff, published by the Stringers—especially those Americans familiar with the inside workings of "Caleb Matthews" (Eat the Russian court, seem to favor this theory as to the identity of the authoress. woman with purple hair and emeralds could write with a frankness so nearly approaching rankness? Azaln we ask with bated breath: Who is Throbba Sniffleoff, author of that superb novel "Oozing Hearts," published by Messrs. Stringer & has to be chaperoned until she marries.

Lized times. For it follows that a woman amore modern land. In of the Boompies," that incomparable could exist in a more modern land. In of the Boompies," that incomparable America the facility for divorce, not novel of canalboat life in Holland, sailed necessarily involving the question of infidelity, permits private affairs to be arranged without the same public scandal; and the knowledge that the markets of the clamoring crowds of eager readers dal; and the knowledge that the mar-riage tie is easily dissolved, dangerous as it may be under some aspects, must of necessity tend toward a certain befall the fascinating Belinda in his next courtesy and consideration in domestic book. It is, however, known that he will intercourse. Marriage becomes a treaty dependent on both parties instead of twenty minutes in Delft while changing dependent on both parties instead of sinking to the level of mere possession on the husband's side and unlimited authority.

In my present novel, "Earth," I have attempted to emphasize the dismay of a pure and ignorant young girl like Diana Cottar brought face to face in her first and absorbing love affair with the creed of the usual "man of the world" typifed of the usual "man of the world" typifed sinking to the locale of the house in the twenty minutes in Delft while changing cars and it is thought by those in the know that from this something may be work. Mr. Fotheringay will return to America in two weeks and will repair at once on his return to his shooting box at Newport, where he will write the book. It will be published toward the latter part of next month. The sequel to "Belinda of the Boompjes" will be awaited with passionate interest by the reading public. of the usual "man of the world" typified sionate interest by the reading public, by the soldier, Antony Rill.

I have been struck by the clear eyed friends who know how.

Price $2.50

Bell and Wing By FREDERICK FANNING AYER

A striking book of verse.-Boston Post, Absorbing, astounding, inspiring, baffling,—London Academy, Power and originality,—Cork Esaminer,
A great work.—Boston Herald,
Marks of genius constantly.—Troy Record,
A wealth of ideas.—Boston Transcript.
Genuine aspiration and power.—Occult Review, England,
Astounding fertility.—Brooklyn Times.
Near the stars.—Portland Oregoniam.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS, Publishers, N. Y.

wrist watch. Gertrude Van Horne Boffington, author of that brilliant story of a woman's heart. "The Clutch of Destiny," is passionately

"The Clutch of Destiny," is passionately fond of flowers. When recently interviewed in her garden, she was asked which flower she liked best.
"I really do not know," she replied.
"There are so many kinds."
"But have you no preference?" insisted the interviewer.

the interviewer.
"My last novel, "The Clutch of Destiny," is a great success," replied Miss Boffington. "It is now going into its third edi-

Mrs. Eifle Euphemia Tibbles, whose latest novel, "Lucia's Lapse," is just going into its tenth edition, has a peculiar method of working. Before beginning to write she always sharpens a dozen pencils. Then, sitting down before her typewriter, she writes without thinking. When she completes a chapter she throws a pencil out of the window. Thus when all the pencils are gone she knows she must have written twelve chapters. In this way she keeps careful track of her work. Mrs. Tibbles wishes it understood that the title of her last novel. "Lucia's Lapse," does not refer to physical laps, but to a moral one on the part of her fascinating heroine. Mrs. Eifle Euphemia Tibbles, whose lat-fascinating heroine. SUMMER NIGHTMARE

Who is Throbba Sniffleoff? That is the question which the public is asking and which is also inflaming court circles, both in the United States and Europe. Two continents and a number of large islands have been thrown into a furore by the brilliant new novel "Cozing Hearts," to which the nom de plume Throbba Sniffleoff is signed. Messrs. Stringer & Co., publishers of this amazingly brilliant work, deny all information as to the identity of the authoress, but in London literary circles it is whispered that the pseudonym disguises a certain beautiful and adventurous princess of the Russian royal family, who is famous throughout Europe for her nursels halp and her coll.

It is a pleasant little book that Robert W. McLaughlin has written in "Caleb Matthews" (Eaton and Mains, New York); a picture of an island on tirely recovers her full prestige in the eyes of the social world. The stigma of it remains. She is a domestic failure, a creature bold enough to break away the winter Palace? And who but a remains of the winter palace? And who but a remains of the winter palace? And who but a remains of the winter palace? And who but a remains of the winter palace? And who but a remains of the winter palace? And who but a remains of the winter palace? And who but a remains of the winter palace? And who but a remains of the main on the winter palace? And who but a remains of the main on the authoress. latter should have so lost the memory of the normal American, unspoiled by cities, as to be surprised at the sentiment and wisdom his fisherman im

> With great propriety Edwin W. Ken-Books Received.
>
> South for that is fast driving its rival from the field, certainly with those who is are out for summer pleasure. It takes up the lion's share of the book, and the author seems to have covered every possible contingency as regards the craft, the engines and motive power, and the arrangements for comfort. Much of the additional nautical information he gives is naturally applicable to all sorts of boats. He supplies what directions a book can give for the art
>
> Books Received.
>
> "Jane Austen: Her Life and Letters." William Austen-Leigh and Richard Arthur Austen-Leigh. (E. P. Dutton and Company.)
>
> "In Byways of Southsh History." Louis Charles Scribner's Sons.)
>
> "The Battle of Gettysburg." Jesse Bow mat Young. (Harpers.)
>
> "Safety." William H. Tolman, Ph. D., and Leonard B. Kendall. (Harpers.)
>
> "The Indiance of Monarchs." Frederick Adams Woods. Ph. D. (Maemillans.)
>
> "The Immigrant." Frederick J. Haskin. (George H. Doran.)
>
> "The Marked War." William J. Burns (George H. Doran.)
>
> "The Ware Case." George Pleydell. (Hodder and Stoughton: George H. Doran Company.)
>
> "Courtin Christina." J. J. Bell. (Hodder and Stoughton: George H. Doran Company.)
>
> "Courtin Christina." J. J. Bell. (Hodder and Stoughton: George H. Doran Company.) drick in his "Practical Sailing and Mo-

PHILOSOPHIZES ON SECRET OF HAPPINESS.

Truman A. De Weese, author of the recently published book "The Bend in the Road," having seen nature with the eyes of a country boy and a city man, has come to the following conclusions, which he announces in "The Bend in the Road":

Only the man who makes things grow and who gets close to the soil has solved the real secret of happiness.

The country is free, open and frank. There are a lot of fine people in the city, but we cannot escape the fact that they live under cramped, unnatural

How can a man live with a woman who does not love the country? There is only one way to keep young. and that is to pursue an outdoor habit with boyish enthusiasm. Whether it is apples or chickens or a garden, you must do some of the work

I know of nothing so clean as the soil of a good garden.

Leading Fiction that has Quality

A New Novel by ELIZABETH DEJEANS

"A writer to be reckoned with "—Chicago Record-Herald. "She has advanced into the foremost rank of novelists."—Hartford Courant

THE HOUSE OF THANE

A vital portrayal of the modern pirate, a subtle study of the emotions, an even more absorbing story than "The Far Triumph."

By ELIZABETH DEJEANS, Author of "The Winning Chance," "The Heart of Desire," "The Far Triumph," etc. Illustrated in color by F. C. Yohn. 12mo. Cloth. $1.25 net. Postpaid, $1.37. Freshness of viewpoint and a power of revealing the true inner emotional life of men and women have won for Elizabeth Dejeans an important place in American Letters. Her last novel, "The Far Triumph," published in 1911, definitely placed her in the forefront of American writers whose works show a deep study of human character. In the new story the character of John Thane is remarkably well drawn and readers will be impressed by the truthfulness with which his passions and emotions are described and their effect upon his life brought out. From the moment when Thane realizes the shallowness of his wife until the climax, the story is a succession of dramatic and thought-stirring scenes. The gradual awakening of this strong, dominating man to the true values in life through the devotion of Mary Kelly, a lovely young girl, child of the streets, is exquisitely done.

LO MICHAEL!"

By GRACE L. H. LUTZ, Author of "The Mystery of Mary," "Marcia Schuyler," "Dawn of the Morning," etc. Illustrated in color by Gayle Hoskins. 12mo. Cloth. $1.25 net. Postpaid, $1.37.

Novels dealing with the clash of social classes and the problem of the poor are very often unpleasant reading, but this strong sociological love story is one of exquisite charm and sentiment.

"Mikky," the little newsboy, saves the life of Starr, the baby daughter of a rich banker, from an angry mob. Through the banker's help and his own indomitable energy, "Mikky" rises to power, and not the least of that which makes him so appealing is his remembrance of the poorer class from which he arose. The story of how he and Starr eventually struggle through class prejudice to happiness is developed through a series of absorbing incidents. Mrs. Lutz handles all her characters sympathetically, and as the story grows in intensity, the social differences which separate Michael and Starr are brilliantly contrasted. The story is free from any suggestion of socialistic motives and is a most absorbing human chronicle.

THE UNFORGIVING OFFENDER Second Printing

By JOHN REED SCOTT, Author of "The Colonel of the Red Huzzars," "The Last Try," etc. Illustrated in color by Clarence F. Underwood. 12mo. Cloth. $1.25 net. Postpaid, $1.37.

"John Reed Scott has shaken off the ghastly cloth of tradition and comes forth into the open to hazard a novel in which a woman who errs recovers her lost place among women who are good women, not merely anointed saints. That a woman should be given her chance to moral rehabilitation only thin-lipped, skirted puritans will deny. Such books as this do more good for the cause of woman than the most sulphurous preachments."—Minna Thomas Antrim, in the Philadelphia Record.

THE ROAD OF LIVING MEN

Second Printing

By WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT, Author of "Routledge Rides Alone," etc. Frontispiece in color by M. Leone Bracker. 12mo. Cloth. $1.25 net. Postpaid, $1.37.

"Mr. Comfort writes stories that are unlike any others."—San Francisco Argonaut. "A fascinating love story."

Boston Globe. "A very vivid story which one reads with no halting interest."—N. Y. World. "The book, fairly breathes optimism and joy."—Knoxville Journal-Tribune. "One has no hesitation in classing this with the best romantic fiction of the day on either side of the Atlantic."—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE MAXWELL MYSTERY

By CAROLYN WELLS, Author of "A Chain of Evidence," etc. Illustrated in color by Gayle Hoskins. 12tho.

"Holds one firmly and powerfully to the end."—Philadelphia Press. "The best novel by far that Miss Wells has written. It is full of surprises and is a most exciting story."—Newark Evening Star. "Curiosity is kept alive by rapid action and the solution is completely hidden until every possible theory is tested out."—Spring-field Republican.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA

Important New Books-Sociology and Economics The Price of Inefficiency

By Frank Koester, Author of "Hydroelectric Developments and Engineering," etc. ook that lays bare national evils due to inefficiency, Governmental or non-Governmental, and largely responsible for the high cost of living and other harsh conditions. Comparisons with other countries give point to both constructive and destructive criticism. Octavo. $2.00 net.

The Education of To-morrow

By Prof. Arland D. Weeks, M. A.
A vigorous overhauling of educational ideals to show what sort of school curricula are the best for an economic democracy. It contends for a closer relation between education and the life interests of the community. 12mo, $1.25 net.

Work and Life

By Ira W. Howerth, Professor of Sociology, University of California. The author's aim is to indicate ways of reorganizing our economic institutions so that their benefits may be justly shared by the whole community. 12mo. $1.50 net.

Constructive Rural Sociology

By John M. Gillette, Professor of Sociology, University of North Dakota, and comprehensive work surveys rural conditions, no deficiencies, seeks to present the problems clearly, and to point out ways of betterment in accordance with the best ideals of country life. 12mo, $1.60 net.

Social Welfare in New Zealand

By Hugh H. Lusk,
For ten years Member of New Zealand Parliament.
A summary based on the latest Government and other statistics of the results of twenty years of progressive social legislation in New Zealand, and an interpretation of its significance to the United States and other countries. 12mo, $1.50 net.

STURGIS & WALTON COMPANY 31-33 E. 27th St.,

of sailing. The book is clear and fully ustifies the designation of practical in he title.

Further aid to the commuter is prorided by Grace Tabor's "Suburban Garlens" (Outing Publishing Company). A very small book that seems to cover a great variety of subjects that interest he owners of small gardens, An ingenious improvement in the mathematics of childhood is offered by William Timothy Call in "A New Method n Multiplication and Division" (C. M. Potterdon, Hawthorne, N. J.). It looks practical, but cleverer heads than ours must decide whether it is or not better than the tables over which we once oiled and have now happily forgotten.

"Is it Enough?" Harriette Russell Camp-"Is it Enough?" Harriette Russell Campbell. (Harpers.)
"Calling the Tune." Justin Huntly McCarthy. (Hodder and Stoughton; George H.
Doran Company.)
"Micheline Quinette." Etienne Bricon.
(Plon-Nourrit et Compagnie, Paris.)
"The Courage of Paula." Jean Noel.
(Broadway Publishing Company. New York.)
"Plays of Old Japan; The No." Marie
C. Stopes, D. Sc., Ph. D., and Prof. Joji Sakural, D. Sc., LL. D. (E. P. Dutton and Company.)

Sakurai, D. Sc., LL. D. (E. P. Dutton and Company.)

"Truth." Paramhangsa Sohom Swami.

(Surja Kanta Banerise, Dacca, Bengal.)

"The Bicameral Principle in the New York Legislature." David Leigh Colvin. (Columbia University Bookstore, New York.)

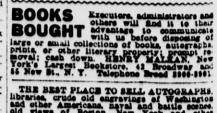

"What You Should Tell Your Boy." Edmund Thomas. (The Platt and Peck Company, New York.)

"Letters From a Father to His Daughter Entering College." (Charles Franklin Thwing, D. D., LL. D. (The Platt and Peck Company.)

Book Exchange

"Letters From a Father to His Daughter Entering College." Charles Franklin Thwing. D. D. Ll. D. (The Platt and Peck Company.)

"The Blossom Shop." Isls May Mullins. (L. C. Page and Company. Boston.)

"The Alaskan Pathfinder." John T. Faris. (Fleming H. Revell Company.)

"The Men Who Blaze the Trail." Sam C. Dunham. (Barse and Hopkins. New York.)

"Schatzkastlein." J. P. Hebel, edited by Menco Stern. (American Book Company.)

"Webster's Secondary School Dictionary." (American Book Company.)

"Twenty-eighth Annual Report of the Bureau of American Ethnology. (Government Printing Office, Washington.)

"Year Book of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace for 1912." (Washington.)

James S. Wadsworth of Genesso." Henry Greenless Peacen. (Charles Scribner's Sena.)

"Journal of James Danckserts." Edited

St. No. T. Telephone Eved 2005-2001.

THE BEST PLACE TO SEIL AUTOGRAPHS. Internations of Washington and other Americans, naval and battle scene. American cities: whaling comes, platures of rives of Scoten, New York and other Americans, naval and battle scene. American cities: whaling comes, platures of sizes whaling comes, platures of sizes of early newspapers. American mage of iterary property and hisserican mage of iterary pr

